

Creating Your Revision Timetable: A Step by Step Guide

Step 1

- Work out when you have your exams.
- Add your exams to a Monthly Planner so you know which exams come first.

Step 2

- Prioritise your subjects. Which subjects will take you longest to revise?
- Focus on subjects you feel least confident in. Start revising these subjects first. These are the subjects that you need to work on.

Step 3

- Limit yourself to studying TWO subjects per day.
- Make a note of which subjects you will revise on each day. Record this onto your Monthly Planner.

Step 4

- Identify which topics you will study on each day, and how long you will spend on them. Record this on your Monthly Planner.
- Give yourself an evening off each week, and some time off at the weekend. Build in time to re-visit topics studied previously.

Step 5

- Colour code your planners in a way that works for you.
- You could use different colours for each topic.
